

Donald Brown

Director of Athlete Partnerships
International Justice Mission

Donald serves as International Justice Mission’s Director of Athlete Partnerships, working alongside IJM’s partners from the pro sports community, Team Freedom, to send rescue for people in poverty that are trapped in slavery and violence. Prior to joining IJM, Donald worked for two organizations, AthLife Inc. and San Diego State University, to provide continuing education and career development services to active and retired athletes. Donald also played 7 years in the National Football League with the Indianapolis Colts and San Diego Chargers. Donald holds a B.S. from the University of Connecticut and an MBA from Indiana University’s Kelley School of Business. Donald and his wife, Mallory, have three children ages 8, 6 and 3.

About International Justice Mission

International Justice Mission is a global organization that protects people in poverty from violence. We partner with local authorities in 20 program offices in 13 countries to combat trafficking and slavery, violence against women and children, and police abuse of power.
