

Jim Reed

Group Director, NCSL

Environment, Energy and Transportation Program

BIOGRAPHY

Jim Reed has worked for 40 years in state public policy analysis and project management. At NCSL, he leads a team of 15 public policy specialists that assist states on topics related to transportation, military and veterans affairs, energy, agriculture, the environment, natural resources, Native American issues, and environmental health through expert testimony, the staffing of issue-oriented working groups, responses to requests for information and in-depth research and analysis. He is the lead NCSL staff to the Military and Veterans Affairs Task Force, made up of state legislators and legislative staff committed to better serving America's veterans and in creating cooperative relationships between military bases and adjacent communities and states.
